

Economic Contribution in FY19

When ConocoPhillips Australia made the decision to invest in Australia Pacific LNG (APLNG) it also made a long-term commitment to the Australian economy.

We know how important a vibrant and sustainable resources sector is to regional, state, and national economies. As part of our Queensland operations, we contribute to the economy as a 37.5 percent shareholder in the APLNG joint venture and as ConocoPhillips Australia. Here is some information on the economic contribution we directed during the 2019 financial year.

We have a 100 percent local operations workforce in Queensland. This means that employees working in Gladstone, live in the Gladstone region and employees that support the operation from Brisbane live in Brisbane.

Often, we travel between the two locations, however, we think it's important our employees go home to their families at the end of the day.

APLNG has been a net contributor to the Australian domestic gas market since the joint venture was established in 2008. Which means APLNG produces more gas than it needs to meet its LNG export commitments and makes the surplus gas available to the domestic market.
